Founded in 1956 by Major Richard Carr-Gomm, the Abbeyfield Society has grown from a single house in Bermondsey, London, to providing services and facilities to over 7,000 residents in 500 houses and homes across the UK. Our guiding principles are as relevant today as they were then; to provide companionship, care, practical support and peace of mind to older people.

Abbeyfield – a way of life

Abbeyfield Knutsford Society is a member of The Abbeyfield Society, a national charitable organisation providing housing, care and support for older people across the UK.

Our comfortable house consists of 11 apartments located very near to the town centre, providing a balance of privacy, support and security. We can offer you:

- Perfect peace of mind – no bills or repairs
- Your own front door in your own community
- Permanent tenancies and trial stays

At Abbeyfield House, residents come together to share two meals each day, having taken breakfast in their own room. The meals are prepared by our resident housekeeper, who also keeps a friendly eye on everyone.

Residents furnish their own rooms, entertain visitors and come and go as they wish.

We like to think that the atmosphere is that of a family of friends sharing the same house.

The house is very conveniently situated with easy access to the town. Shops, churches and banks are within easy walking distance, and there is a very good supermarket just across the road. Abbeyfield is situated close to a local primary school.

Knutsford is an attractive town with great charm and historic interest. Elizabeth Gaskell's novel Cranford is based on Knutsford, where she lived as a girl and is buried.

Our history

Abbeyfield Knutsford's first home was established in Tabley Close in 1965. Our present purpose-built house was opened in 1989, designed to cater for nine residents and also having a guest room. Following an extension and the addition of a beautiful conservatory, the house now comfortably caters for 11 residents.

The housekeeper has their own flat incorporated in the house, and can be easily contacted through the alarm system should the need arise.
